

FIRE IN TUNNEL MAKES WORKMEN FLEE FOR LIVES

Heroism of Telephone Boy and Engineer Saves Eighty from Death.

FIREMEN ARE INJURED.

Fear of an Explosion Drives
Thousands Out of Their Homes.

In total darkness, one hundred feet underground and seven hundred and fifty feet out under the East River, seventy "mad-hogs" fought their way to safety early to-day when a fire destroyed several buildings at the entrance of the shaft of the Pennsylvania tunnel at the foot of Thirty-third street, burned the light connections and threatened to destroy the air-compressing plant, which would have shut off the air supply and made a horrible death inevitable for every one of them.

It was only through the devotion to duty of employees of the company that the lives of the men were saved. The flames, while entailing a loss of only about $5,000, destroyed the plans of the tunnel, imperiled the lives of 2,000 persons who live in the vicinity by its proximity to a huge gas tank and like pounds of dynamite, resulted in the injury of several persons who were fighting the flames and brought out many acts of heroism.

The fire started from defective insulation on the three-story building at the shaft of the tunnel. The works of Pearson, Son & Co. extend from Twenty-first to Thirty-third street and are four shafts.

A night watchman discovered the fire and notified Supt. Post, who had five blasts blown as the fire drill. Under William Tapp, an inspector, the crew got busy and several lines of company hose were soon playing on the fire. The flames gained rapidly, however, and caught the joists, beams and tar paper.

Running down the hall they spread to the hospital, where Walter Newell was ill from bends. He set up a shout and aroused Dr. H. H. Pelton, who forgot his own danger and ran to the assistance of his patient. Although Newell is large and Dr. Pelton a small man, the latter picked him up and carried him out through a burning framework that scorched both. Lieut. McDermott of the East Thirty-fifth street station, called an ambulance, and Newell was taken to Bellevue.

Supts. Sullivan, of Shaft C, and Kibben, of Shaft D, were notified by John Kealey, an eighteen-year-old telephone operator in the hospital building, of the fire, and telephoned down the shaft to get the men out as quickly as possible.

Kealey stuck to his post until the last minute, with firebrands falling all around him before he left, and to his heroism in staying to give warning was largely due the escape of the seventy men at work in the tunnel.

Lights Out in Tunnel.

Just as the news was flashed into the tunnel, the lights went out. The wires had burned and shut off the current, leaving the men in darkness.

This, coupled with the startling news that the buildings above were on fire, made the men desperate, and they fairly fought their way to the air locks. Finally all were safe, and were brought to the surface in buckets.

With the flames licking close about the power-house, Thomas Doran, the chief engineer, stuck to his post and kept his stokers working so that the machinery was not stopped for even an instant.

YALE STUDENT KILLED IN AUTO SMASH BURIED.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 28.—Services over the body of Daniel Lee Oliver, the young Yale student, who was killed in an automobile accident in New Haven, Conn., last Wednesday, were held to-day at the home of his mother, Mrs. James B. Oliver, at Sileida, Pa.

Many Yale students were present and the pallbearers were all classmates of the deceased young man.

The body was interred in Allegheny Cemetery.

10-YEAR MARRIAGE BAN ON TEACHERS TO CHECK CUPID

Paterson, Desperate, Sets the Limit for Normal School Graduates.

PATERSON, N. J., June 28.—That teachers who have been trained at the expense of the city are not expected to marry for at least ten years after graduation, was the announcement solemnly made last night by President Thomas J. Reardon, of the Board of Education, at the commencement exercises of the graduating class of the Normal Training School here.

So many teachers in the public schools have been married within the last two years, that the schools have been seriously handicapped, and the Board of Education has had to go outside the city for recruits to fill the depleted ranks of teachers. It was this fact that led to the announcement.

"You know, your ladies," said President Reardon to the thirty-two young graduates, "that the Board of Education has gone to no great expense to fit you for the positions you are about to fill. It naturally demands something in return. It may be unpleasant for some of you, I know, but then we have to start with some class."

"We have been handicapped time and again by the activity of Master Cupid, and we have got to put a stop to it. For that reason we are going to demand of each of you that you will not marry for at least ten years to come."

The President's remarks were followed by a burst of laughter, in which the fair graduates joined. But although Mr. Reardon was supposed to have been speaking in a joking vein, the fact remains that the Board of Education feels that it is only right that the teachers who have been trained at the city's expense, and placed in the way of earning a livelihood, should give their services for a reasonable time at least at the work for which they have been educated.

ROOSEVELT'S GUESTS TO-DAY.
OYSTER BAY, L. I., June 28.—President Roosevelt had as guests at luncheon at Sagamore Hill to-day Sir John Harrington, British Minister to Abyssinia, and Michael Bannin, recently appointed a member of the Indian Commission.

FOUR INDICTMENTS AGAINST SCRUGHAM

Head of Policy Holders Committee Will Be Arraigned Monday.

The Grand Jury to-day filed with Judge Warren W. Foster in Part I, General Sessions, four indictments found against George B. Scrugham, late office manager of the International Policyholders' Committee in the election of officers for the New York and Mutual Life Insurance companies. One indictment charged conspiracy with Charles Sturup and Charles F. Carrington to vote illegal ballots in the insurance elections. The other three indictments charged forgery in the second and third degree in the writing in of alleged witnesses' names.

It is understood that Scrugham, with Attorney John B. Stanchfield for counsel, will be arraigned before Judge O'Sullivan for pleading Monday.

Park & Tilford AGAINST SUBSTITUTION

Other dealers substitute special brands and inferior goods on your orders because these yield a larger profit. This is not Park & Tilford's method. Popular Brands that have won a reputation for unexcelled merit, are held at your disposal in largest variety, in all Park & Tilford's stores. You get just what you ask for, and if what you desire is not carried, you are courteously notified.

A copy of Park & Tilford's Catalogue will be gladly mailed you at once.

Graduation Gifts.

What shall I give the graduate? Is a question which naturally occurs to you at this season of the year. The question is easily answered. A call at the jewelry establishment of Lambert Bros. will readily dispel any doubt, as their enormous stocks in every line are full of suggestions not only for presents for graduates, but for gifts suitable for engagements, weddings, birthdays and bon voyage. Our method of importing diamonds direct, and of manufacturing in our own factory most of the jewelry we sell, eliminates the middleman, so that our customers receive high-grade jewelry at importers' and manufacturers' prices.

Diamond Rings

As to diamond rings for graduations and engagements or for less momentous occasions, we can meet your views in respect to style, pattern and price. All stones are direct Lambert importations. Mountings are made by our own workmen under the supervision of members of the firm who are themselves practical working jewelers. We save you money on every purchase. We are always adding to the variety of our patterns.

Two-Piece Suits For Men, $15 to $35

With this very marked distinction—they are not simply 3-piece suits with the vest left out.

The two-piece suit is an evolution; we regard it a distinctive creation with a special purpose.

All the care and thought we have bestowed in the production of these garments is amply repaid by what we have achieved.

Two-piece Suits of worsteds, flannels, crashes and genuine Donegal homespun. The variety of patterns is infinite.

Coats in twelve models, single or double-breasted. Pockets variously styled. Quarter or eighth lined with silk or mohair.

Quoting Trousers of white and fancy flannels in light and dark effects, $3 to $7.

Young Men's Suits, $12 to $15

Sizes 30 to 36

The models are not those of older men modified in size, but are especially designed with a view to the proper fulfillment of their sphere and with all the style that the youth of advanced ideas expects.

The fabrics—serges, worsteds, crashes, and flannels in many weights—some are as light as 8½ ounces to the yard.
